Summary

The National Register of Historic Places is the official Federal list of districts, sites, buildings, structures and objects significant in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering and culture. The National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 authorized the National Register of Historic Places, expanding Federal recognition to historic properties of local and State significance. The National Park Service in the US Department of the Interior administers both programs. The National Historic Preservation Act authorizes State and Tribal Historic Preservation Officers (SHPOs/THPOs) in each Tribe, State and Territory of the United States to nominate properties to the National Register of Historic Places and to carry out other preservation activities. Federal Preservation Officers (FPOs) have been designated in Federal agencies to nominate Federal properties and to fulfill other responsibilities under the Act. Properties listed in the National Register of Historic Places possess historic significance and integrity and take the form of either a building, site, structure, object or district. Properties listed on or eligible for the National Register of Historic Places must receive consideration based on the National Historic Preservation Act prior to any undertaking involving Federal monies. Additionally, properties listed on or eligible for the National Register may receive grants, tax credits and other benefits based on their status under the National Historic Preservation Act.

Description

This feature class describes properties listed on the National Register of Historic Places, classified as historic buildings, and depicted as points. The National Register of Historic Places requires the submission of a single UTM coordinate pair for properties under 10 acres or a series of bounding UTM coordinate pairs for properties over 10 acres. The polygons contained within this dataset represent boundaries created from connecting the bounding UTM coordinates submitted with the nomination. A building, such as a house, barn, church, hotel, or similar construction, is created principally to shelter any form of human activity. A building may also be used to refer to a historically and functionally related unit, such as a courthouse and jail or a house and barn. Buildings include: houses, barns, stables, sheds, garages, courthouses, city halls, social halls, commercial buildings, libraries, factories, mills, train depots, stationary mobile homes, hotels, theaters, schools, stores and churches. Attribute data in this dataset are intentionally limited to those necessary for spatial data maintenance and feature level metadata necessary to document the lineage of the geography itself. Data from external database systems, such as the National Register Information System, are intended to link with these data to provide basic feature attributes. The means to maintain unique identifiers for each historic site (CR_ID), Survey_ID, as well as unique geometries associated with that feature (Geometry_ID) are through the use of Globally Unique Identifiers (GUIDs) assigned by the database. Information about the genesis of individual points is documented by feature level metadata fields in the spatial attribute table.

Use limitations

Locational accuracy varies depending upon how the locational data was originally recorded. The National Register of Historic Places requires the submission of a single coordinate pair for properties under 10 acres and a set of coordinate pairs representing a general bounding area for properties over 10 acres. Coordinate pairs are not checked for accuracy. Datum information is not collected related to the coordinate pairs. Users should consult the feature level metadata attributes to determine the appropriateness of the data for specific tasks. Release of locational information for cultural resources are subject to the provisions of Section 304 of the National Historic Preservation Act as Amended and Section (9)(a)(2) of the Archeological Resources Protection Act as Amended.

OTHER CITATION DETAILS

States, Tribes, Federal agencies, certified local governments and the general public have been nominating properties to the National Register of Historic Places since its creation in 1966 with the National Historic Preservation Act. The National Register of Historic Places serves as national inventory of historically significant sites, buildings, structures, objects and districts. The inventory is growing annually with the addition of more properties determined eligible and is constantly being updated. Location information is collected with each nomination, however the accuracy and quality of this data changes over time.

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION

Since its inception in 1966, more than 88,000 properties have been listed in the National Register of Historic Places, and cataloged in the National Register Information System. Together these records hold information on more than 1.4 million individual resources--buildings, sites, districts, structures, and objects--and therefore provide a link to the country's heritage at the national, state, and local levels. This dataset represents the historic buildings delineated as polygons (under 10 acres), stored in the National Register Information System.

MEASURE DESCRIPTION
This dataset is generated from UTM coordinate pairs submitted with National Register of Historic Places nominations and transcribed into the National Register Information System. Coordinate pairs historically have been generated from 1:24,000 USGS quadrangle maps. Coordinate pairs generated more recently may have come from aerial photography, GPS or other means of derivation. Source information related to how the coordinate pairs are generated is not recorded. Polygon boundaries are created by connecting the coordinate pairs in the sequence order submitted with the National Register nomination, through an automated process in GIS.

DEFINITION
Historic buildings are a resource created principally to shelter any form of human activity, such as a house. These resources would include features such as: farmhouses, homesites, mansions, churches, museums (if the building is historic), courthouses, offices, prisons, train depots, etc. Historic buildings most often function primarily as dwellings. The point may represent the center of the building, an entrance, etc., while the polygon may represent the building footprint.

A GUID (Globally Unique Identifier) is a 128 bit number that can be expressed in string format and is a standard method in MS Windows of generating an identifier virtually guaranteed to be unique regardless of its source. GUID's allow systems/users to generate their own identifiers with near certainty that they will be Globally Unique. Automated tools for generating GUID's will be included in the implementing data model.

OVERVIEW DESCRIPTION

ENTITY AND ATTRIBUTE OVERVIEW

Historic buildings are resources such as a house, barn, church, hotel or similar construction principally created to shelter any form of human activity. Historic buildings may also refer to a historically and functionally related unit, such as a courthouse and jail or a house and barn. These may be locations of a house, barn, stable, shed, garage, courthouse, city hall, social hall, commercial building, library, factory, mill, train depot, stationary mobile home, hotel, theater, school, store or church. The attributes associated with the geography in this dataset represent the National Park Service cultural resource spatial data transfer standards and document the lineage of the geography itself. No attributes describing the buildings or features themselves is included in this dataset. Descriptive information is intended to link to the geography via the National Register reference number.
